There isn't a single, universal "Nova Southeastern financial aid number." Instead, NSU utilizes a student ID number, linked to your application and financial aid profile, which serves as your key to accessing financial information. This number is crucial for several reasons:

Accessing your financial aid award letter: Your student ID is used to access your personalized award letter detailing the types and amounts of financial aid you've been offered.

Tracking your financial aid disbursement: You'll need this number to monitor the progress of your aid and ensure funds are properly applied to your student account.

Communicating with the Financial Aid Office: When contacting the NSU financial aid office for inquiries or updates, providing your student ID number expedites the process.

Managing your student account: This number is integral to accessing your student portal, where you can view billing statements, payment options, and other financial details.

How to Obtain Your NSU Student ID Number

Your student ID number is typically provided after you've completed the application process and been accepted to NSU. You'll likely receive it through:

Your acceptance letter: Check your official acceptance email or mailed acceptance letter. It often includes your student ID prominently displayed.

Your student portal: Once you've been accepted and created an account on the NSU student portal, your ID number will be readily accessible.

Your financial aid award letter: If you've applied for financial aid, your award letter may also include this important number.

Contacting the NSU Financial Aid Office: If you cannot locate your student ID, contact the financial aid office directly. They can assist in retrieving your number.

Types of Financial Aid Available at NSU

NSU offers a wide array of financial aid options to help students finance their education. These include:

Federal Grants: These are need-based grants provided by the federal government, such as the Pell Grant, and do not need to be repaid.

Federal Loans: These are low-interest loans offered by the federal government. Repayment begins after graduation or if you drop below half-time enrollment. Types include subsidized and unsubsidized Stafford Loans.

NSU Scholarships: NSU offers a variety of merit-based and need-based scholarships based on academic achievement, extracurricular involvement, and financial need. These scholarships can significantly reduce the cost of tuition.

Private Loans: These loans are offered by private lenders and often have higher interest rates than federal loans. Explore these only after exhausting federal aid options.

Work-Study: This program provides part-time employment opportunities on campus to help students earn money while attending school.

nova southeastern financial aid number: Student Governance and Institutional Policy Michael T. Miller, Daniel P. Nadler, 2006-05-01 Colleges and universities face a variety of challenges in meeting the needs of students, and one of the greatest is their ability to respond to student needs while protecting institutional and academic integrity. For those working with students, a primary example of this challenge is the involvement of students in shared decision-making, a process often developed and fostered through organizations such as student government. Few discussions have embraced the challenges of shared governance with students, particularly within the past two decades. This book arose from continuous conversations with college and university administrators and policy makers who struggle daily with the decision-making process and the role of student voices. The volume is also intended to be an extension of the Julie Caplow and Michael Miller volume on Policy and University Governance (2003) that looked at internal and external governance issues and their impact on institutional policy formation and decision-making. The collections of chapters included here provide a comprehensive view of student involvement in policy formation and decisionmaking. The volume begins with a general overview of the challenges associated with investing students with power, authored by Tulane University's Morolaké O. Laosebikan-Buggs. Michael Miller and Daniel Nadler then provide a rationale as to why students have been involved in shared decision-making in the past, outline the benefits and problems historically associated with student shared governance, and offer some meaningful recommendations for continuing to work with students.
