Navigating the World of PointClickCare Training Videos for Nurses

1. Identifying Reputable Sources for PCC Training Videos:

Finding high-quality, reliable training videos is crucial. Avoid generic tutorials; instead, focus on resources directly from PointClickCare or reputable partners. Look for videos that are:

Officially Sanctioned: Videos directly from PointClickCare's website or learning management system (LMS) are the gold standard. These videos are usually updated regularly to reflect the latest software versions and features.

Specific to Nursing Roles: Don't waste time on videos covering aspects irrelevant to your daily tasks. Seek out content tailored to nurses, covering charting, medication administration, and other nursing-specific functionalities within PCC.

Up-to-Date: Technology evolves rapidly. Ensure the videos you use reflect the current version of PCC. Check upload dates and descriptions for confirmation.

Organized and Structured: Look for videos that are well-structured, with clear explanations and concise examples. Avoid videos that are poorly edited or jump between topics without a logical flow.

2. Essential PointClickCare Features for Nurses – A Video Focus:

Several PCC features are critical for nurses' daily workflow. Effective training videos should comprehensively cover these areas:

Medication Administration: Mastering the medication administration module is paramount. Videos should cover everything from entering orders to verifying dosages and documenting administration.

Charting and Documentation: Learn how to accurately and efficiently document patient assessments, interventions, and outcomes. Videos should highlight efficient charting techniques and best practices for avoiding errors.

Progress Notes: Effective progress note writing is crucial for communication and continuity of care. Look for videos that cover different types of progress notes and best practices for concise and accurate documentation.

Care Plans: Understanding how to create, modify, and utilize care plans within PCC is essential for coordinated patient care. Videos should demonstrate how to access, update, and utilize these plans effectively.

MAR (Medication Administration Record): Learn how to navigate and interpret the MAR within PCC, ensuring accurate medication administration and tracking.

Reporting and Analytics: While less frequently used for direct patient care, understanding basic reporting functionalities can help nurses contribute to quality improvement initiatives.

3. Effective Strategies for Learning from PointClickCare Training Videos:

Don't just passively watch; actively engage with the content. Here's how:

Take Notes: Jot down key takeaways, shortcuts, and any questions you have.

Practice What You Learn: Don't just watch - use a test environment (if available) or a sandbox to practice the steps demonstrated in the videos.

Break Down Long Videos: Watch in shorter segments to avoid information overload. Focus on mastering one feature at a time.

Use the Speed Control: Adjust the playback speed to suit your learning style.

Utilize Video's Interactive Features: Many training platforms incorporate interactive elements.

Engage with quizzes and exercises to reinforce learning.

Seek Clarification: If something remains unclear, consult your facility's IT support or PCC super-users.

4. Troubleshooting Common PointClickCare Challenges Using Videos:

Videos can be invaluable for addressing specific challenges. Look for tutorials focused on:

Error Messages: Many videos address common error messages and provide solutions.

System Glitches: Learn how to troubleshoot common system issues and navigate unexpected problems.

Workflow Optimizations: Improve your efficiency by finding videos that demonstrate best practices and shortcuts.

Specific Feature Issues: If you're struggling with a particular feature, search for targeted videos addressing that specific area.

point click care training videos for nurses: Florence Nightingale: The Crimean War Lynn McDonald, 2011-02-01 Florence Nightingale is famous as the “lady with the lamp” in the Crimean War, 1854—56. There is a massive amount of literature on this work, but, as editor Lynn McDonald shows, it is often erroneous, and films and press reporting on it have been even less accurate. The Crimean War reports on Nightingale’s correspondence from the war hospitals and on the staggering amount of work she did post-war to ensure that the appalling death rate from disease (higher than that from bullets) did not recur. This volume contains much on Nightingale’s efforts to achieve real reforms. Her well-known, and relatively “sanitized”, evidence to the royal commission on the war is compared with her confidential, much franker, and very thorough Notes on the Health of the British Army, where the full horrors of disease and neglect are laid out, with the names of those responsible.

point click care training videos for nurses: Parenting Matters National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Supporting the Parents of Young Children, 2016-11-21 Decades of research have demonstrated that the parent-child dyad and the environment of the family—which includes all primary caregivers—are at the foundation of children's well-being and healthy development. From birth, children are learning and rely on parents and the other caregivers in their lives to protect and care for them. The impact of parents may never be greater than during the earliest years of life, when a child's brain is rapidly developing and when nearly all of her or his experiences are created and shaped by parents and the family environment. Parents help children build and refine their knowledge and skills, charting a trajectory for their health and well-being during childhood and beyond. The experience of parenting also impacts parents themselves. For instance, parenting can enrich and give focus to parents' lives; generate stress or calm; and create any number of emotions, including feelings of happiness, sadness, fulfillment, and anger. Parenting of young children today takes place in the context of significant ongoing developments. These include: a rapidly growing body of science on early childhood, increases in funding for programs and services for families, changing demographics of the U.S. population, and greater diversity of family structure. Additionally, parenting is increasingly being shaped by technology and increased access to information about parenting. Parenting Matters identifies parenting knowledge, attitudes, and practices associated with positive developmental outcomes in children ages 0-8; universal/preventive and targeted strategies used in a variety of settings that have been effective with parents of young children and that support the identified knowledge, attitudes, and practices; and barriers to and facilitators for parents' use of practices that lead to healthy child outcomes as well as their participation in effective programs and services. This report makes recommendations directed at an array of stakeholders, for promoting the wide-scale adoption of effective programs and services for parents and on areas that warrant further research to inform policy and practice. It is meant to serve as a roadmap for the future of parenting policy, research, and practice in the United States.

Cudd, L. de Witte, 2017-09-05 The lives of people with disabilities are complex and various, and there are many situations where technology – particularly assistive technology – already makes a real difference. It is clear that smart phone and tablet computer based solutions continue to enhance the independence of many users, but it is also important that more traditional assistive technologies and services are not forgotten or neglected. This book presents the proceedings of the 14th conference of the Association for the Advancement of Assistive Technology in Europe (AAATE 2017) entitled: 'Harnessing the power of technology to improve lives', held in Sheffield, UK, in September 2017. This 4-day event about assistive technologies (AT) highlights the association's interest in innovating not only technology, but also services, and addresses the global challenge of meeting the needs of the increasing number of people who could benefit from assistive technology.
